

TRAUMA-INFORMED INTERPRETING

May 20 9:00am - 4:00pm

4700 College Oak Dr.
Sacramento, CA 95841

ROOM: RAEF HALL (160)

WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION:

Through this training participants will be able to identify the effects of trauma in the clients they serve and have strategies for improved interpretation that is trauma-informed. They will develop specific vocabulary needed for interpreting in these contexts. Participants will also become more aware of the indicators of secondary trauma within themselves and leave the training with a commitment to self-care techniques.

Amber Hodson, MSW, CI/CT

Amber began her career as an ASL interpreter. After completing her Masters in Social Work at the University of Michigan, she began volunteering as one of the founding members of DeafHope. Ever since, she has been part of the advocacy team, during the last 3 years as an Empowerment Director under DeafHope's collective leadership structure. She is a faculty consultant with the Vera Institute of Justice and has trained grantees with the Office on Violence against Women for over 10 years. Amber's training and consultation has included support for emerging DVSV programs throughout the country and the development and implementation of national trainings for interpreters working in trauma-based settings.
